AngelStar Unveils New Customizable Angel Connections Collection MakeMyWings.com supports the line by offering free design templates

Morgan Hill, CA – AngelStar[®], a leading inspirational gift company recognized for its distinctive ivory colored inspirational products and Worry Stones[™], will debut the new Angel Connections products during the 2010 summer market season. The collection includes eleven different angel figurines and a remarkable new magnetic wing design, which allows pieces to sit next to each other to create a “family” of angels. The collection, made up of both male and female angels, features slots in the angel wings, which can host cutouts of heartfelt sentiments and inspirational thoughts, or simply showcase adored photos of family and friends. To make the personalization process easy for consumers, AngelStar has created MakeMyWings.com. The website provides users a multitude of design templates and easy-to-use, step-by-step instructions for customizing the wings of each piece.

The Angel Connections, which range from 2” to 5 -1/4” in height, feature the company’s classic ivory look, finely detailed designs and beautifully combine personalization and inspiration. Each resin figurine comes well-packaged in a vertical box decorated in soft-colored hues and floating angel wing feathers. The packaging also features a sizeable window for individuals to view the product’s exquisite design. The retail prices for the pieces range from $9.50 - $13.50.

MakeMyWings.com, which launched earlier this month, provides customers an easy-to-use, step-by-step customization process. To create the wing inserts, individuals choose a template, print it and cut it out to fit the wings, or create one of their own using personal images.

Angel Connections, which stems from the company’s ever-popular Photo Stones[™], will be available in July, and can be seen at the company’s Atlanta showroom in AmericasMart Building 2, Suite 1363A.
